Celebrating on Thursdays

Antioch's summer concert series gets season under way

By JESSICA JACOBSEN
jjacobsen@nwnewsygroup.com

ANTIOCH - Summer time is here, and for the third year in a row the village of Antioch is offering something for residents to do on their Thursday nights.

Once again, residents can enjoy the summer weather and music with Antioch's "It's Thursday" concert series. Concerts begin at 7:30 p.m. and admission is free for all ages. All concerts take place at William E. Brook Entertainment Center, 900 Skidmore Drive.

Shawn Roby, special events supervisor for Antioch Parks and Recreation, said he thinks the series will have a successful year.

"We've got great talented bands coming through, and you'll get everything from the '50s to today with the music," Roby said. "There's something here for everybody."

Another thing that will help with the success, Roby said, is continuing to have nice weather, which the first event had.

"I could not have planned better weather ... This is a phenomenal turnout by the community, phenomenal turnout by the veterans," Roby said.

"I couldn't have asked for more."

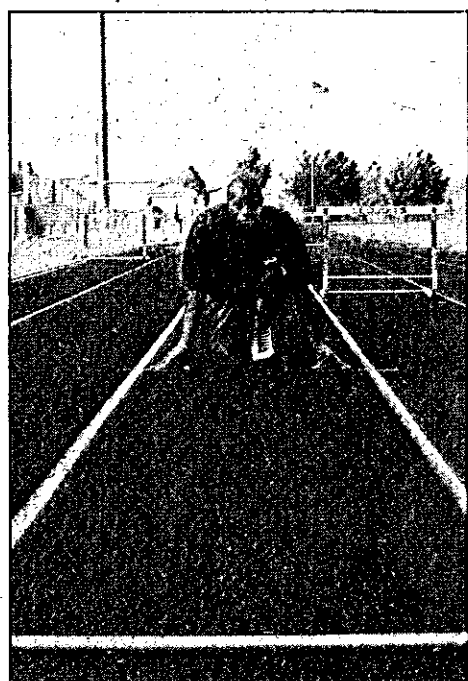

The first concert was June 26 with a performance by the Lakes Area Community Band and Antioch Community Choir.

Before the concert, there was a Salute to the Troops, with a speech from Col. Layton Pennington.

Pennington spoke about what an honor it is to have served this country and asked all the veterans in the audience to stand up and receive recognition from the crowd.

Introducing two news faces at the Journals

It's always good to have new faces here at the Lake County Journals.
This week, we're pleased to introduce Kristina Peters and Carly Romano.

Kristina will be interning with us this summer.

She's getting ready to go into her senior year at Eastern Illinois University in Charleston where she is studying journalism.

Next semester, she will be the editor-in-chief of the school's newspaper, the Daily Eastern News, and she will use the experience she gathers from here in that role.

Kristina love to write.

Joe Grace

She's minoring in creative writing at Eastern and is looking forward to telling the stories of people in our community.

If you have a story idea for Kristina, you can write to her at kpeters@nwnewsgroup.com.

Carly Romano will be joining us full time.

She'll primarily write for the Round Lake Journal and Wauconda Journal, though you will be sure to see her writing in all of the Journals at one point or another.

Carly is a recent graduate of the University of Missouri, where she earned her degree in journalism with an emphasis in print journalism.

While at Missouri, she worked for the highly regarded student newspaper on the crime beat.

She also interned at a bi-weekly newspaper in St. Louis.

And just so you know, Carly is a huge science-fiction and country music buff.

If you have a story idea for Carly or simply wish to welcome her to your community, please e-mail her at cromano@nwnewsgroup.com.

...

Finally, I just want to wish everybody a wonderful and safe Fourth of July. Enjoy time with your family, have fun watching the fireworks, and take a little bit of time to remember all those who fought and continue to fight for our independence.

Antioch Parks and Recreation director

First-time event goes enjoy summer concert

• CONCERT

The crowd at the June 26 concert looked like it was a few hundred people.
And that was something that made Parks Director Laurie Stahl happy.

"I think it's a great kickoff to the series, and I never expected this many people at the first concert," Stahl said.
"So, it's really nice. I think it'll just get bigger and bigger."

Roby and Stahl both agreed that the concert series is a good free event available to the community.

"It's a nice thing that we can do," Stahl said. "A free event where people can come out and just enjoy the evening and listen to music."

Among those enjoying the first event were Dennis and Mary Jo Byrne of Antioch. This was the couple's first time attending the "It's Thursday" series.

"I think more people should come to this," Dennis Byrne said.

It also was Pennington's first time at the event.

"I could get used to coming up here," he said.

Pennington also was pleased with community turnout and was glad that

July 10: Crows Feet will perform '60s/'70s classic rock music. With six band members, multiple vocalists and tight harmonies, they pay tribute to some of the bands of that era including The Eagles, Fleetwood Mac, and Crosby, Still, Nash, and Young.

July 24: Southern Heritage is a band that flows from classic country to southern rock to blues to soul and back again. The band has interpreted songs by artists like Merle Haggard, Travis Tritt, and Brooks and Dunn.

July 31: Libido Funk Circus is a Chicago dance-party band. The have performed high-energy renditions of disco dance hits of the 1970s, along with top dance and rock from the past 40 years.

Aug. 7: The Legends will perform their "Back to the Beach" show, which features hits from the Beach Boys, The Ventures, Jan & Dean, and other surfin' sounds. Antioch's fourth annual the Salute the Troops was a part of the first concert.

"I think that's the most appropriate thing to do, because without the free-

Classic and Custom Car Show also will take place that night.

Aug. 14: Jin and Tonic is a cover band that plays high-energy rock and country songs.
Sounds emulate those of Gretchen Wilson, Johnny Cash, Sheryl Crow, AC/DC and many more.

Aug. 21: The Blooze Brothers are on the loose again. Pursued by parole officers, Jake and Elwood sense that a trap is being laid. As they band tears into the opening number, the parole officers bait the trap with a dance routine to reel in the boys. But the Blooze Mobile has been cornered by the Antioch Police and has been escorted toward the stage. As the chase ends Jake and Elwood storm the stage and the 12-piece band gets the music going.

All shows begin at 7:30 p.m. at William E.
Brook Entertainment Center, 900 Skidmore Drive in Antioch.

do something like this," Pennington said.

Bringing fathers, sons together

Church, village to host family-oriented boat regatta at Pederson Park

By JESSICA JACOBSEN
jjacobsen@nwnewsgroup.com

ANTIOCH — NorthBridge Church and the village of Antioch have found a new way to bring people together. The church and village have teamed up to present the Father and Son Milk Jug Boat Regatta.

Gary Ricci, associate pastor at NorthBridge, said he was talking with village officials about organizing an event for fathers and sons.

Ricci, who has organized boat regattas before, wanted to be a part of the father-son event.

"Antioch really feels like a town and [NorthBridge Church] wants to be a part of it," Ricci said.

Now Ricci is scrambling to find milk jugs for the event, which will be from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday, July 12, at Pederson Park in Antioch.

"I'd love to have 70 teams," Ricci said.

Having 70 teams would be Ricci's limit, because he can't round up anymore milk jugs to store in his office, he said jokingly.

Cost for the event is $25 a team for Antioch residents, and $30 a team for nonresidents. People can sign up for two divisions. Participants in division one will be given materials to make their boat. And participants in division two will have to make a boat with their own materials. Both divisions can not have any type of motor and boats must be floated with only milk jugs or cartons.

Ricci added the event is meant to bring fathers and sons together, but it is not limited to father-son teams.

"If you want to, you can bring [a] daughter, nephew or other children," he said.

One of the reasons Ricci and NorthBridge teamed up for the project was to maintain ties to Antioch.

"We try to stay involved in the community. ... Hopefully, this is a fun way to do it," Ricci said.

For more information on the Father and Son Milk Jug Boat Regatta, call the Antioch Parks and Recreation Department at 847-838-4032.

Have fun on the 4th

That's right, it's already time to celebrate the Fourth of July.

And the village of Antioch has a number of events for residents to enjoy.

Whether it's the sports tournaments, the 5K run/walk event, the children's fair, the parade, or the fireworks, there is something for pretty much everyone.

So, just because you might have the day off from work, don't waste it by sleeping until noon.

Get out there and enjoy all that Antioch has to offer.

Especially because I just checked the weather on cbs2chicago.com and it looks to be in the mid 70s and partly cloudy.

Don't hesitate to go out and enjoy the festivities because you might regret it later.

Congratulations to Ryan Kessler of Antioch. Kessler is a recipient of a $1,000 scholarship award from The Baxter International Foundation. Kessler was selected from more than 300 applicants.

Great work, Ryan!

Congratulations to Shaylene McCue of Antioch Elementary School.

McCue won a third-place prize in the sixth grade category for a safety poster contest sponsored by Metra.

The contest is designed to promote railroad safety practices to students in kindergarten through 12th grade throughout the six-county northeastern Illinois region.

Way to go, Shaylene!

Tee-up to benefit others

Golf outing in honor of Antioch graduate

By JESSICA JACOBSEN
jjacobsen@nwnewsgroup.com

ANTIOCH – Don Jansky described his son Capt. Benjamin D. Jansky as a giving guy. That's one of the reasons that after Benjamin Jansky died in Iraq in July 2005, his family decided to set up a scholarship in his honor for a student at Antioch Community High School.

"He did a lot of great things," Don Jansky said about his youngest son.

To help raise money for the scholarship, Don Jansky set up the Captain Benjamin D. Jansky Memorial Golf Outing.

Tee time for the event is 1 p.m. Wednesday, July 9, at Antioch Golf Club, 40150 N. Route 59.

The golf outing setup is a four person scramble at a cost of $90 a person, which includes dinner and prizes.

Don Jansky said he came up with the golf outing idea because he is familiar with the setup and his son enjoyed to golf every now and then.

"I thought it would be a good, fun ... for the community," Don Jansky said.

The scholarship that the golf outing benefits was set up in Benjamin Jansky's honor because he is a graduate of Antioch High School. Benjamin and his wife, Kate, moved next to the high school after they were married. Don Jansky said one of the reasons they moved there was because they both were into the education of students. The two also majored in elementary education at the University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh.

Because of Benjamin's love for education, Don Jansky thinks that he would be pleased that his memory is going toward someone else's education.

"He would be very proud [and] honored that some other student will be helped," Don Jansky said.

To participate, sponsor, or assist with the outing, contact Don Jansky at 847-973-8936 or e-mail djinc1@gmail.com.

Rep. Osmond supports changes to flood assistance legislation ANTIOCH – In an effort to provide relief to flood victims, State Rep. JoAnn Osmond, R-Antioch, recently sponsored legislation that would change the income tax law for victims of a disaster to ensure they would not be penalized for accepting donations.

"During the recent flooding in our area and around the state, many homes have been damaged leaving countless families seeking alternative housing," Osmond said. "In many cases, the community, including the victim's employer, will help provide housing. Under the current state income tax law, the donation would be treated as income and therefore the employee would have to pay income taxes on it, even if it was meant to help instead of adding to his or her cash income or wealth. This legislation will ensure Illinois families do not have to suffer twice over as a result of being victimized by a disaster."

House Bill 6657 would allow disaster victims to accept donations up to $20,000 without being penalized by the state income tax system, according to a release.

For more information, call Rep. Osmond's district office at 847-838-6200.

Historical Independence Day Fun Facts

1. Farmers, lawyers and business owners in the Colonies were thriving, with some plantation owners and merchants making the equivalent of $500,000 a year during the Revolutionary War era.

3. American citizens blow up more than 220 million pounds of the decorative explosives on the 4th of July.

2. According to the National Hot Dog and Sausage Council, Americans consume over 150 million hot dogs during their Independence Day festivities.

4. Uncle Sam was first popularized during the War of 1812, when the term appeared on supply containers. Believe it or not, the U. S. Congress didn't adopt him as a national symbol until 1961.

When bad vacations just happen

I didn't put a lot of planning into our road trip this year. First, I went online and found a few areas out west that had been airbrushed to photographic perfection.

Then I checked out reviews of hotels at these destinations.

I booked three places to stay where reviewers had not written, "this hotel had a moldy smell;" or, "the wallpaper was hanging off the wall;" or, "my early morning shower was just a cold trickle of water."

So, when my husband, Stan, and I arrived at our hotels, we found sweet smells, affixed wallpaper, and hot showers. Unfortunately, I'd not read reviewers who had written, "I had to wear ear plugs day and night."

Because I'd missed those, we also found the noisiest people on Earth had checked in at these same hotels - in rooms next door to us, above us, or across the hall.

The first night of our trip we were startled awake at 3:30 a.m. when the ceiling above us shook so hard I thought I was witness to a sign of the Apocalypse.

This tumult contained the occasional shouted word, but it also contained, shall we say, "specific" noises.

That's all I can say in a family newspaper, but I said to my husband at the time of the event, "What should we do?"

"Don't worry, he said. "It will be over soon."

How wrong he was.

Dazed by lack of sleep, we somehow managed to drive to the second hotel the next day.

But noise perpetrators struck again.

Three hours into our stay, two kids' baseball teams invaded, occupying all other rooms still available.

The teams practiced running bases in the corridor, screaming, "You're out!" every 12 seconds. After that, they collectively watched "The Simpsons" in the room next to ours, at a volume no doubt detectable three states away. I'd never before known Homer to say "d'oh" and have it hurt my head.

"Can these kids be sent home and re-attached to their mothers' umbilical cords?" I asked my husband.

Stan reminded me that some of their mothers had come along to chaperone, although we hadn't seen an adult with the team since one shoed a kid out of the hotel bar earlier that day.

Fed up, we headed pool-side. That's where we found the team supervisors, splashing and yelling, the din resonating to where we went temporarily deaf. At least that condition allowed us to sleep that night.

County declared eligible for federal disaster relief

LAKE COUNTY JOURNALS

The Federal Emergency Management Agency declared Lake County homes and businesses eligible for individual assistance programs to recover from the recent flooding.

Hours before FEMA's declaration, U.S. Rep. Melissa Bean, D-Barrington, and U.S. Sen. Dick Durbin met personally with FEMA Director R. David Paulison to argue that Lake County should be included in the federal disaster program. Lake County was one of 14 Illinois counties added to the program June 23.

"I commend FEMA for its quick action and recognition of the impact this disaster has had on Lake County residents," Bean said in a release. "The damage to homes and to the local economy in the Chain O' Lakes area has been considerable. As we enter the July 4 holiday, a vital time for local tourism, homeowners and businesses need this assistance to rebuild and keep our community's economy vibrant. If you've been affected by the flooding, I encourage you to call FEMA and see if you qualify for assistance."

Disaster assistance may include:

- Grants to help pay for temporary housing and repairs to make a home habitable.

- Grants for serious disaster-related expenses not covered by insurance.

- Low-interest disaster loans from the U.S. Small Business Administration for individuals and business owners to cover residential and business losses not fully compensated by insurance.

A toll-free application telephone number and online registration is now available for residents and business owners in 14 counties who suffered property damage or loss from the severe storms and flooding that began June 1, FEMA officials said in a release.

Federal funding is also available on a cost-sharing basis for hazard mitigation measures statewide. All counties in the state of Illinois are eligible to apply for assistance under the Hazard Mitigation Grant Program.

Health department offers tips to deal with summertime heat

LAKE COUNTY JOURNALS

Summer is a great time for outdoor fun and activities. But it is also a time when heat stroke and other ailments can strike with little warning.

"During prolonged periods of hot, humid weather, extra caution should be taken by the elderly, small children, and bedridden or chronically ill persons," said Dale Galassie, executive director of the Lake County Health Department/Community Health Center, in a release. "They are especially susceptible to heat exhaustion and heat stroke if they are unable to move to a temperature-controlled room and remain hydrated."

The Health Department offers these tips to avoid heat-related illnesses:

- Drink extra fluids such as water, fruit juices or lemonade, especially during very humid weather.

- Avoid caffeine and alcohol.
- Wear lightweight, loose-fitting clothing (especially made of cotton, if possible) that does not interfere with the evaporation of perspiration.

- Eat small meals and eat more often. Decrease food high in protein, which increases metabolic heat.

- Try to engage in activities that involve strenuous labor in the evening or early morning hours to avoid the hottest part of the day, which is between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. If possible, stay in an air-conditioned environment during this time.

- In a home that lacks air-conditioning, stay in the basement or lowest floor; close drapes to keep out the sun, or go to a shopping mall, library or other building that is air-conditioned.

- Never leave an infant, elderly or disabled person or even a pet in a parked car with the windows closed.

- Symptoms of heat exhaustion, which can be caused by spending too much time in the heat, include pale and clammy skin, heavy perspiration, dizziness, weakness, headache or cramps, nausea and fainting. Symptoms of heat stroke, which can be caused by over-exposure to direct sunlight, are high body temperature, skin that is red and dry, rapid pulse, and loss of consciousness. Heat stroke can lead to death if untreated. An individual with any of these symptoms should see a physician as soon as possible.

To reduce over exposure to sunlight during prolonged periods outdoors, remember to:

- Apply at least SPF 15 sunscreen and lip balm, especially on children.

- Wear a hat.

- Wear sunglasses with an ANSI rating of 99 percent, and 98 percent UVA protection. These ratings should be found on the label of the sunglasses. Also, wear sunglasses that are either wraparounds or close fitting to prevent the sun from filtering from the side.

MARY THERESE HEALY

Born: March 8, 1930
Died: June 26, 2008
The love of her life was her family

ELKADER, Iowa—Mary Therese Healy, 78, of Elkader, Iowa, and formerly of Antioch, died Thursday, June 26, 2008, at her home after a brief illness. Aunt Mary was born March 8, 1930, in Chicago, to Timothy Francis and Ethel Josephine (Coover) Healy. She graduated from St. Tarcissus Catholic Grade School and Carl Shurz High School of Chicago.

Aunt Mary was a member of St. Joseph Catholic Church in Elkader, where she was active in St. Joseph Guild, Mary Martha Meals, Communion Minister for the Sick and Bingo at Elkader Care Center. The love of her life was her family. Aunt Mary shared in the lives of three generations of the Healy clan. She loved all of her nieces and nephews as if they were her own children. There wasn't a time in any of her nieces and nephews lives when they didn't feel like they were the most important thing in her life. We are better people because of her never ending love and support. We will all miss her smile and quick wit, her Irish way of life and the aunt who was always there.

Survivors include her two brothers, Eugene (Lucy) Healy of St. Olaf and Jerome (Audrey) Healy, of Elkader; a brother-in-law, Theodore Brendel of St. Petersburg, Fla.; a sister-in-law, Ann Healy, of Mundelein, her special friend, Sr. Rosanna Gleason of Dubuque, Iowa; and many nieces, nephews, cousins and friends. Richard Gaul concelebrated. Interment was afterward in St. Joseph Catholic Cemetery. Visitation was an hour before Mass on June 30. In lieu of flowers, memorials may be given to Prairie du Chien Hospice. Leonard-Grau Funeral Home of Elgin, Iowa handled the arrangements.

Condolences may be left with www.leonardfuneralhomes.com. Please also sign the guest book at www.lakecountyjournals.com/obits.

Moving, movie and a marriage

Robots in love make for such a good story. My fiancée and I went see "Wall-E" over the weekend, the night before I helped her move out of her Evanston apartment into her parents' home, where she will stay for the four months until we are married. It was a great movie. Basic premise: Earth is filled with junk. All the humans leave Earth and hang out in space for 700 years or so. The only thing left on Earth is Wall-E, a robot who is left cleaning up the polluted place. My fiancée's Evanston apartment. Not much better. Little was ready when her dad and I got there Sunday morning to help her move. Empty boxes strewn about. Clothes still hanging up in the closet. Dishes still needing to be washed and packed. Where was Wall-E when you needed him? So, here I am, packing stuff up in boxes, dragging it down a fire escape, stacking it in a moving truck. In the movie, Wall-E's sojourn alone on Earth ends when a beautiful robot named Eve is dropped off by the humans to look for life on Earth. Wall-E quickly falls in love with her, but she just as quickly finds life and is whisked back away on the spaceship. Wall-E follows her. Eventually, after a lot of running around and plot thingies, all of the humans go back to Earth and begin to clean the place up, including Wall-E and Eve. After a couple of hours of packing, my fiancée's apartment is empty. Clean. And in four months, we'll be flying away from the single life and landing together in marriage. It will take work. Nothing good in life comes easy. But we're lucky. We have each other. We'll work together. I'll help her organize our move into our new place. She'll help me organize my life. We won't take our marriage for granted. And, just like Wall-E and Eve, we'll make ourselves a beautiful little world.

Death penalty in limbo

Illinois still has the death penalty. Sort of. There are 14 people on death row, convicted felons who have been sentenced to die for heinous crimes. Whether those sentences will be carried out remains uncertain. The death penalty has existed in legal limbo since former Gov. George Ryan placed a moratorium on it in 2000 after 13 death row inmates were exonerated. Later, Ryan commuted the sentences of all 167 inmates on death row. Ryan's actions were not unwarranted. There were significant problems with the death penalty in Illinois - too many innocent men were being sentenced to die. Fast forward eight years and the issue remains unresolved. Reforms meant to avoid the problems of the past were implemented. The changes included the audio- or videotaping of police interrogations of murder suspects and their confessions. But Gov. Rod Blagojevich still refuses to allow executions. Lawmakers also have stayed clear of the issue. And so, the death penalty remains in Illinois, sort of. People get sentenced to die, but there is no intention of the sentence being carried out. This is unacceptable. If we are going to allow people to be sentenced to death, we should be willing to carry out the sentence. If politicians do not believe the death penalty should be allowed, then they should abolish the death penalty. The death penalty in Illinois is viewed as a no-win issue for politicians. If they abolish it, they can be viewed as being soft on crime. If they bring it back, they risk resurrecting a system that almost resulted in more than a dozen innocent men being put to death by the state. So, instead of dealing with it, our elected officials leave the death penalty issue to languish in limbo.

Land preservation triumphs over disc golf

The annual Senior Citizens Day at Independence Grove was another success. My wife and I enjoyed the beautiful atmosphere, the many friends we met, and the weather-friendly day given us by Mother Nature. Master of Ceremonies Larry Leafblad reminded us that they have never had a rain-out for Seniors Day since it began. It's almost as though it's Mother Nature's way of saying "thank you" to the Lake County Forest Preserve District for its excellent record of land preservation over the many years. I was especially happy that Carol Calabressa came over to our table at a time I was resting my "paws" from hours of walking. We had a long discussion about the history of the district and its commitment toward the enhancement of the quality of life in the county. She said that it was hard to believe that the district would soon celebrate its 50th anniversary since it was established. I told her, "Who said one person can't make a difference?" I was referring to Ethel

Help available

To the Editor: I know the last few weeks have been difficult for many of you, particularly those of you in the Chain O Lakes and northern Lake County where flooding has been intense. I've been working closely with local, state, and federal disaster officials and am relieved to announce that the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) has declared Lake County homes and businesses eligible for individual assistance. This follows a meeting Sen. Durbin and I had with the FEMA administrator and our letter to the President requesting this declaration due to the flooding damage in our communities. This assistance is available to individuals, families, or businesses that have seen their property damaged or destroyed by the recent flooding. Even those with insurance may qualify for some assistance. If you've been affected by flooding, you can contact FEMA at 1-800-621-FEMA or visit their Web site at www.fema.gov to see if you qualify for assistance and to apply. Even if you have already reported damage to local officials or the American Red Cross, you must apply with FEMA to be considered for federal disaster assistance. Disaster assistance may include:

- Grants to help pay for temporary housing and repairs to make a home habitable.
- Grants for serious disaster-related expenses not covered by insurance.
- Low-interest disaster loans from the U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA) for individuals and business owners to cover residential and business losses not fully compensated by insurance.

Residents who apply for disaster assistance can expect to hear from an inspector who will schedule a visit to look at damaged property. FEMA schedules inspections to verify losses, if the damaged property is accessible. The SBA also sends loss verifiers to inspect damaged property if you have submitted a completed loan application. In addition, local building and safety inspectors might come to see if damaged structures are safe. All inspectors should have photo identification and there is no fee for these inspections. Remember to keep your receipts for any flood repairs that you might have already com-

Response to legacy

To the Editor: In "What will be the legacy of George Bush?" in the June 26 issue, John Matijevich seems unaware of the fact that legacies are written not by living people, but by future generations. Andrew Jackson was despised by many during his lifetime, but today is remembered as a great president, a true man of the people.

Lincoln was hated by many of his constituents for his wartime policies, but is revered today. Truman had the lowest poll numbers ever, but is remembered as a straight-talking man of the people. Spit and fume as you will, Mr. Matijevich, but George Bush will go down in history as a defender of liberty.

America will be remembered for freeing millions from the Nazis and from the Soviet Union; Bush will be remembered for continuing that trend into the 21st century. I suspect that the "Bush Lied" crowd will not be treated so kindly in the pages of history.

Untermeyer, who moved to Lake County in 1957 from the outskirts of Chicago and wanted to walk her 3-year-old son down a public pathway and found out there were no pathways or public trails. Untermeyer started her crusade and petition drive to establish a forest preserve district in Lake County. The next year, in 1958, the public, in a referendum, agreed with her. A few weeks afterward, the district was formed. It was fitting that in the year 2000 the district created a forest preserve to honor her - Untermeyer Woods, near Old Mill Creek. Talking with Carol, I thanked her for her yes-vote on an issue that might seem minor to many. Carol, Robert Powers and Robert Sabonjian voted against a proposal that would have allowed a site-selection process for disc golf to be played on district properties. Their 3-2 vote prevailed on the Board's Planning and Restoration Committee and the issue is "dead" for now. Powers also stopped to chat at the picnic. Although I was more concerned about his health and a long bout with a staph infection, I did thank him for his strong smart-growth stands and his disc golf vote. Committee members Brent Paxton and David Stolman voted to allow disc golf. Paxton has been a responsible member, but I was disappointed in his vote. I know that his family has a background of recreational leadership, particularly his father, former Zion mayor, Chuck Paxton. But, he must understand that his first priority must be in land preservation and restoration, which must not be encroached upon by recreational, sports, or commercial activities. Still a fairly new sport, disc golf is one in which players throw discs at above-ground baskets with scoring like golf. The sooner your discs fly into the basket, the lower your score.

There are disc golf courses in Lake County and they are operated at city recreational parks or at park districts. That's where they belong. As I have reported in this column, disc golf isn't the only sport or recreational activity that could utilize forest preserve property. When you open the door to one activity, it's hard to say no to the others. Carol Calabressa put it best when she said, "Get ready for the never-ending group of people asking for more land."

The Forest Preserve District has done an outstanding job of land purchases and development that have been within its original mission and reason for being. Let's continue that record. Let's not get Mother Nature mad. She's already brought enough flooding. That ought to open the eyes of the over-development crowd. Plus, we want Her to continue to keep the rains away for future Senior Days in Lake County.

If coliform bacteria are present in drinking water, the well should be disinfected by a licensed well contractor and retested. The health department has three regional offices where people can pick up sterile bottles to fill with water and return for analysis, and where residents can get information about disinfecting wells.

• Before re-entering a flooded home or basement, make sure that no electrical or other safety hazards exist, such as leaking gas.

• Do not eat food that has been exposed to floodwater, unless the food is in cans. Thoroughly wash sealed cans in good condition. Immerse the cans in a bleach disinfecting solution made by mixing 2 teaspoons of household bleach per gallon of water for at least five minutes. All spoiled foods and leaky or distorted cans should be discarded.

• Use a household detergent solution to scrub the basement and other areas of the house that have been flooded. Flush the washed areas with safe water. Follow this washing with flushing or mopping with a disinfecting solution of 1/4

Loud vacation ends with bang

The next day we arrived at our last hotel, our hearing fully restored. The lobby was serene, but we should have known better.

A sign welcoming "The Smith/Jones' Family Reunion" sat next to the main desk. As we neared our room, one of the reunion family members staggered out and greeted us in a voice so booming, the lights flickered.

"Char and Ed," he said, "you made it!" He hugged my husband.

"I'm not Ed," Stan said. "Go away."

"Sure you're Ed," the stranger said, slurring his words. It was going to be a long, loud night.

At 1 a.m., unable to sleep, I opened the door and witnessed Smith/Jones family revelers in various states of undress, dancing in and out of their rooms, singing, drinking, and slamming doors. The Addams family would have been a welcome relief.

At 4 a.m., they either fell asleep or passed out. We checked out a day early.

Never were we so glad to get home to our own quiet bedroom. After 13 hours on the road we were asleep at midnight, grateful that our nearest neighbors were 30 feet away, sleeping quietly in their own houses.

At 3 a.m., the tornado sirens went off.

Goodbyes tough for this mom

Two days ago, my 7- and 8-year-old sons boarded an airplane for a visit to their dad in Arizona. Since this was their first visit to Phoenix, the whole week before was an emotional whirlwind.

The kids were preoccupied with thoughts of what to pack and what they would be doing while on vacation. Too wound up to fall asleep, they spent most nights of the week camping out on my bedroom floor and staying up way past bedtime.

Yes, emotions ran high, vacillating between excitement, trepidation and everything in between. And that was just me, never mind the kids!

After packing, repacking and reminders to drink plenty of water and to not wander off, I handed them off to their godparents at the airport.

While knowing that they were in the hands of good, responsible adults did alleviate some of my anxiety, biding them good-bye and walking away with just my 3-year-old daughter's hand to hold felt odd and empty.

And just now, I suddenly missed their little faces so terribly and intensely my stomach began to hurt.

I suppose it is something that gets easier with time.

I remember when my oldest was just a baby; it felt odd even to go shopping alone. Without a baby, diaper bag and carrier I was not sure what to make of all the extra room in the cart available for groceries.

And while adult-only occasions were a welcome break, it was oddly comforting to reach into my pocket and find a forgotten pacifier.

Yes, I miss Antonio and Emilio terribly and pray for their safe return next week.

But just like those welcome evenings out, there is a bit of a silver lining to this vacation situation.

Two boys' haircuts, $20. Books and magazines for the flight, $40. My bathroom still clean for a record two days and counting, now that's priceless!

FAMILY REUNION SENSITIVITY TRAINING

Don't frighten away kin at summer shindig

By GENEVA SLUPSKI
editorial@nwnews-group.com

With the season of family reunions and get-togethers underway, this is a great time to work on those communication skills.

Catching up with relatives over baked beans and potato salad can be less stressful than say, conversing with the boss at the company picnic. Still, family functions have the potential for social blunders as much as any gathering. "It would be the same kind of etiquette you would use in any social situation," said Edith Wagner, editor of Reunions Magazine. The Milwaukee-based publication helps people plan family, class, military and other reunions. "When people are with their families, they tend to feel like they have more license to do things that maybe they wouldn't do in the general public."

Wagner said it's important to keep in mind that family reunions often include folks of all ages, from newborns to senior citizens. What might be an appropriate discussion for your 20-something sister could upset your 80-something grandmother. Having grown up in a different time, Grandma might not share the same political or religious views as younger generations at the event.

"You have to respect their beliefs," Wagner said. "By respecting their beliefs, it's simply a matter of saying nothing [about certain topics]."

When talking to family members you haven't seen for a while, avoid broaching subjects such as divorces, layoffs, illnesses or other personal issues they might have faced recently.

"You don't want to bring up sensitive issues," said image consultant and communications specialist Marianne Rowe-Dimas. "Almost anything would be better than a negative topic. You don't want to cause problems or cause other people to be unhappy."

One exception to that rule is if the person has experienced a death since you last spoke. It's acceptable to acknowledge his or her loss and say how sorry you are, said Rowe-Dimas, who teaches a "How to Schmooze" course at Harper College in Palatine. She also runs the Image Factor in Buffalo Grove, offering coaching in business communications, etiquette and image enhancement.

Try not to stress too much over those aunts, uncles or cousins, who are notorious for saying the wrong things at events, Wagner said. Warning them to not to say anything beforehand might just encourage them.

"Don't say 'Don't talk to Grandma about this' or 'Don't talk to Aunt So-and-So about this,'" Wagner said. "Some people will go to the reunion to be outrageous."

Tips for better socializing at family reunions

- Be respectful to older relatives who might not share the same views as you when it comes to politics or religion. Avoid bringing up these sorts of subjects.
- Don't ask a relative you haven't seen in a while about personal issues he or she might have faced recently such as a divorce or layoff. It is acceptable to offer your condolences if there's been a death in his or her family.
- Feel free to show people pictures of the kids, and offer updates on your life, but not to the point of bragging.
- Try not to be the overly chatty relative everyone avoids. Make sure you ask the other person about his or herself and your conversations have plenty of give and take.

'Hancock' needs help

Movie about flying superhero never takes off

By JEFFREY WESTHOFF
jeffreywesthoff@jeffwest.com

Had "Hancock" stuck to its simple setup – what if Superman were an ornery, drunken jerk – it would have been home free.

That's the movie you see advertised, a comedy starring Will Smith as a reluctant, bourbon-chugging superhero. But "Hancock" is more drama than comedy, and it's not that simple, either. Give Smith and the filmmakers credit for wanting to add complexity to a summer entertainment, but the attempts to deepen the emotions turns "Hancock" into a strange, conflicted and often joyless film.

Hancock can fly and is indestructible. In comic books this would make him the idol of millions, but in contemporary Los Angeles he is a pariah. Of course, if he could figure out how to nab four gang-bangers without causing $900 million worth of damage to the freeway system, the public might appreciate him more.

When Hancock saves the life of public relations agent Ray Embrey (Jason Bateman), Ray offers to rehabilitate the superhero's image. "I'm going to teach you how to interface with the public," Ray says. He tells Hancock not to threaten children or swear at old ladies, and to avoid all that property damage.

So far, we have a decent comic-book spoof going. The only hint of discord is that Ray's wife, Mary (Charlize Theron), is certain Hancock will ruin their lives. Then when L.A.'s district attorney swears out a warrant for Hancock's arrest, Ray convinces Hancock to surrender. Hancock's stint in prison knocks the movie off track and into weird territory.

The script, which is credited to Vy Vincent Ngo and "X-Files" writer Vince Gilligan, features a perfectly executed, absolutely unexpected sockaroo of a plot twist at the midpoint. But after its initial jolt, the development bogs the story with necessary exposition and unnecessary angst.

If Michael Mann or Jonathan Mostow ("Terminator 3"), both listed among the producers, had directed, "Hancock" might have been able to straighten up and fly right. But Peter Berg directs. Berg ("The Kingdom") is as reckless a director as Hancock is a superhero. He plows ahead without subtlety, destroying the infrastructure designed to hold the project together.

Jason Bateman (left) and Will Smith star in "Hancock," a movie about a flying superhero with an attitude. Peter Berg directs the PG-13 movie.

"Hancock"

Berg annoys at the most basic level. He chooses to film "Hancock" with a handheld camera and slightly grainy stock that should have gone out of fashion when "NYPD Blue" went off the air. Some filmmakers, Mann for instance and Paul Greengrass with "The Bourne Ultimatum," know how to use the technique to build paranoia. But Berg is just using it because he thinks it looks cool, and it becomes a joke during the mundane moments. We don't need edgy cinematography to watch a man eat meatballs.

Berg's inability to shift between the comic and dramatic pushes "Hancock" beyond uneven.

If the movie never seems to know where it's going, at least Smith does. He is brave enough to sully his image by insulting children and old women, and he zeroes in on Hancock's identity crisis. The hero doesn't know where he came from. He lost his memory 80 years ago, and all he knows about himself is that he is the most powerful man on earth and that he doesn't age.

Smith plays the anguish as well as he plays the comedy. It's not his fault most of these themes were explored with more intelligence and pathos (and somewhat less confusion) in M. Night Shyamalan's "Unbreakable."

Getting 'relatively close'

By TOM WITOM

thomaswitom@yahoo.com

As three sisters and their significant others arrive for a weeklong get-together at their late parents' summer cottage in Union Pier, Mich., the same question keeps popping up: "Can we leave now?"

That sets the stage for "Relatively Close," the latest dysfunctional family comedy by James Sherman premiering at the Victory Gardens Biograph Theater in Chicago.

Close as children, the three women in this Jewish family that Sherman has drawn are now at odds.

Jan (Penny Slusher), a pushy Chicago real estate agent, wants to sell the property and split the profits — once she gets her commission. Another, Marlene (Wendi Weber), feels sentimental about the place and insists that it not go on the market, while a third sibling Beth (Laura T. Fisher), now working on her fifth marriage, just wants everyone to get along.

But family dynamics make such a wish a challenging prospect.

The mismatched mix includes their respective spouses: Yousef (Usman Ally), a well-heeled Persian businessman who brushes off gibes about his ethnicity by describing himself as "a Persian — not an Arab"; Ron (Daniel Cantor), an assistant state's attorney with a stalled career; and Arthur (Dexter Zollicoffer), a university provost who feels like he's the odd man out in the group — and not because of his African-American ethnicity.

Rounding out the cast is Beth's surly teen-aged son Dylan (David Gonzalez), who's horrified to learn there's no cable TV, cell phone service or Internet connection, let alone computer. He comes to the rescue at the end of the first act when everyone else is going ballistic when long dormant grudges surface.

Marlene, the super-shy one who sometimes talks, ventriloquist-style, through a sultry, flirtatious dummy dolled up like an over-the-top tart, proves to be the most sensible one of the lot. "Life is fine; relatives are weird," she tells her nephew.

Growing up in the area and spending time in Michigan's Harbor County obviously didn't hurt Sherman's fertile imagination in creating "Relatively Close," though the humor comes across as more biting than in his earlier "Beau Jest" and "Affluenza!"

Director Dennis Zacek keeps the play moving at a fast pace all the way to its improbable conclusion, while John Stark provides a sprawling three-story beach house as comfortable as a well-worn pair of favorite slippers.

'Kooza' comes to life

By TOM WITOM
thomaswitom@yahoo.com

Cirque du Soleil, which reinvented and revitalized the circus, has made a splash wherever it has pitched its blue and yellow tent. The Montreal-based company, whose performers include only people and no animals, is recognized in major cities around the world.

Now on a return visit to Chicago after a two-year absence, Cirque is presenting "Kooza," a fresh, beguiling two and one-half hour show by writer-director David Shiner.

With its gravity-defying performers, exotic costuming, flamboyant choreography and eclectic musical score, "Kooza" adds up to an unforgettable experience.

One of the most exciting acts featured the "Wheel of Death" in which Angelo Lierzkysky and Carlos Enrique Marin Loaiza risk life and limb while each hurtles in separate but connected rapidly spinning open-sided wheels.

These daredevils, wearing horned costumes, perform their routine inside and outside the device - all without benefit of a safety net.

Muscular Yao Deng Bo, meanwhile, pushes the envelope to demonstrate his keen sense of balance, ultimately holding himself up by one arm atop a shaky 23-foot-high tower formed by stacking eight chairs on a pedestal.

More chills were induced watching the Charivari ensemble's balletic teeterboard jumps, including one seemingly impossible maneuver performed on stilts.

Sharing the spotlight with the muscular acrobats are the company's magnificent clowns, led by Gordon White. They get involved with the audience and frequently steal the show, even if some of their material borrows from old vaudeville routines.

Blackthorn Grille: An Irish pub with international flair

By LESLIE GLAZIER-WERNER

This Irish pub isn't content to just celebrate the Emerald Isle. Blackthorn Grille is a gourmet globetrotter, with an exceptional wine and drink menu, and an eclectic mix of entertainment.

Co-owner Fred Nielson said business has been booming since the restaurant opened three months ago. Fred, a developer, said he's owned the restaurant property for 40 years, which he formerly leased to Prime Time Saloon & Eatery. Fred and his partners, John Haley and Rob Hardman, have totally remodeled the building, transforming it into a welcoming bit of Ireland.

The Blackthorn Grille is decorated with a whimsical mural of the Irish countryside, and a magical path of shamrocks, which rambles through the restaurant. Warm wood details, stained glass lighting, and Irish sayings etched in glass invite you to relax and unwind.

The full bar offers an extensive selection of fine wines, beers, and mixed drinks.

There are 22 televisions scattered throughout the restaurant for sports fans. And, with a seating capacity of 200, the Blackthorn Grille can easily accommodate large parties.

Executive Chef, Marc Vitello, has created a gourmet menu with an international flair. Dinner selections range from a traditional shepherd's pie to "Clare Island Tournedos of Salmon": two peppered salmon filets—one seared with a brandy glaze, the other with Pinot Noir cream sauce.

Whether lunch or dinner, Blackthorn Grille is sure to satisfy with a choice of beef, ribs, chops, seafood, chicken; pasta, soups, salads, sandwiches, burgers, pizza—even stir fry. The restaurant has also added breakfast on the weekends. Breakfast selections include omelets, pancakes, and French toast. Fred added that pizza delivery was going to be offered in 2 weeks, as well.

The pub offers live entertainment almost every night of the week, including Irish music on Thursdays. Weekends feature a variety of live acts, from bands playing classic rock to dueling pianos.

"We welcome everyone from the area to come see what we have to offer," Nielsen said. "We are a 'Cheers' type of bar where people are friends and come to meet each other...and then there's the excellent food and entertainment."

Good vs. Bad What makes some cholesterol OK?

(MS) — Most people know there is a distinction between "good" and "bad" cholesterol. But what makes some good and some bad? And which foods are OK to eat and which should be avoided?

Good

What is it? High-density lipoprotein (HDL) is known as "good" cholesterol. This is because HDL is believed to remove cholesterol from the blood. When HDL levels in the blood are high, this is believed to reduce a person's risk of coronary heart disease. The adverse effect occurs when HDL levels are low. Good foods to eat: Because genetics play a role in cholesterol levels, what's good for the goose isn't always good for the gander.

However, these foods have been known to reduce LDL levels:

- Foods with soluble fiber: foods containing soluble fiber, which is known to reduce the absorption of cholesterol in your intestines, reduce levels of LDL. Oatmeal, oat bran, cereals containing oats, kidney beans, apples, and prunes are all high in soluble fiber.

- Fish and omega-3 fatty acids: omega-3 fatty acids help reduce blood pressure and the risk of blood clots. Fish that boast high levels of omega-3 fatty acids include mackerel, lake trout, salmon and albacore tuna.

- Walnuts/almonds: walnuts are known to significantly reduce blood cholesterol, and walnuts and almonds can both do wonders in as little as four weeks. However, be careful, as nuts are high in calories, which can lead to weight gain. Eating a handful per day will still help reduce cholesterol while keeping weight off as well.

Bad

What is it? Low-density lipoprotein (LDL) is what's known as "bad" cholesterol. Buildup of LDL in the arteries can increase a person's risk of heart disease, while lowering that level is believed to lower a person's risk of developing heart disease.

Foods to avoid: Though genetics play a role in cholesterol levels, diet plays a significant role as well. Regardless of family history, it's always best to avoid these foods:

- Foods high in saturated fats: saturated fats should be avoided as much as possible. Saturated fat is a type of fat found in whole milk, eggs and meat. Other foods high in saturated fats include butter, ice cream, and even cheese.

- Foods with trans fats: trans fats are a double-edged sword, lowering your HDL while raising your LDL. Used to preserve food and give them a less greasy feel, foods with trans fats include french fries, crackers, cookies, and doughnuts.

- Tobacco: while tobacco isn't a food and therefore not eaten, it should, like saturated and trans fats, be avoided. That's because smoking has been shown to increase levels of LDL and speed up a condition known as atherosclerosis, a buildup of cholesterol and other fat deposits along the artery wall.

ARIES - March 21/April 20

Aries, money is the root of all evil for you this week. You may let greed get the better of you. Thursday is a good day for turning things around.

TAURUS - April 21/May 21

Think long and hard on things before you make a big decision, Taurus. Examine all sides and you just may find that you're doing it all for the wrong reasons.

GEMINI - May 22/June 21

Sometimes there's no place like home to provide that quiet retreat that you crave, Gemini.

But since staying home all the time is not an option, you have to learn how to chill out elsewhere.

CANCER - June 22/July 22

This is a special time for you, Cancer. The stars are aligning in just the right way to bring you financial success and a wealth of friendship as well.

LEO - July 23/Aug. 23

Leo, it's time to get off the express train to nowhere and figure out what you want to do with your life for the next few months. Get a plan and put it in action.

VIRGO - Aug. 24/Sept. 22

Normally you're the first to join in with anything, Virgo. But this week you're certainly not the life of the party. Banish this serious case of the grumpies.

LIBRA - Sept. 23/Oct. 23

It's remarkable what you can accomplish when you put your mind to things, Libra. This week is full of surprises and some will trickle over into next week as well.

SCORPIO - Oct. 24/Nov. 22

Scorpio, being helpful and being bossy are two different things. But you're having trouble telling the difference between them. Rethink your approach.

SAGITTARIUS - Nov. 23/Dec. 21

Sagittarius, constantly checking up on a coworker is not going to make him or her move any faster. In fact, it could incite this person to slow down progress even further. Back off and let the person do what he or she will.

CAPRICORN - Dec. 22/Jan. 20

Hand over the leadership reins to another person, Capricorn. You're entitled to a well-deserved break this week. It's OK to watch things from the sidelines. Why don't you try to take a nice, long vacation?

AQUARIUS - Jan. 21/Feb. 18

Stop worrying about your finances, Aquarius. Your investments, bank accounts and other financial ventures are all picture-perfect. Splurge on something you want. Go buy that big, expensive item.

PISCES - Feb. 19/March 20

Sharp words and barbs may win the fight in the immediate future, Pisces, but they can also have long-term effects. Try to think about things before you go through with them. The extra thought will pay off in the long run.

Hard work pays off

I'll admit that I am not the biggest soccer fan. Until this year, the only soccer games I watched were MLS games. But all the clamor about the European Championship sparked my interest.

I wasn't scheduling my days around the games as if it was the Cubs or anything, but when I had some free time I would watch a little bit of it.

I was surprised to learn that Spain was a team that is prone to premature exits, or as my boyfriend likes to say, "the Phoenix Suns of soccer."

I looked it up and saw that the last time Spain had won a European Championship dated back to 1964. And when I heard that Germany is a three-time champion, I figured Spain might fall the same fate it has in years past.

Luckily for Spain, I was wrong, and they beat Germany 1-0. We can chalk up my presumption to me not knowing much about soccer.

Reading about Spain's team, it's not surprising they got their first major title in 44 years. In the tournament, Spain finished as the top-scoring team with 12 goals.

Seeing the photos on the Internet and in newspapers with Spain's team brought a smile to my face. It proved that hard work and never giving up can lead to great things.

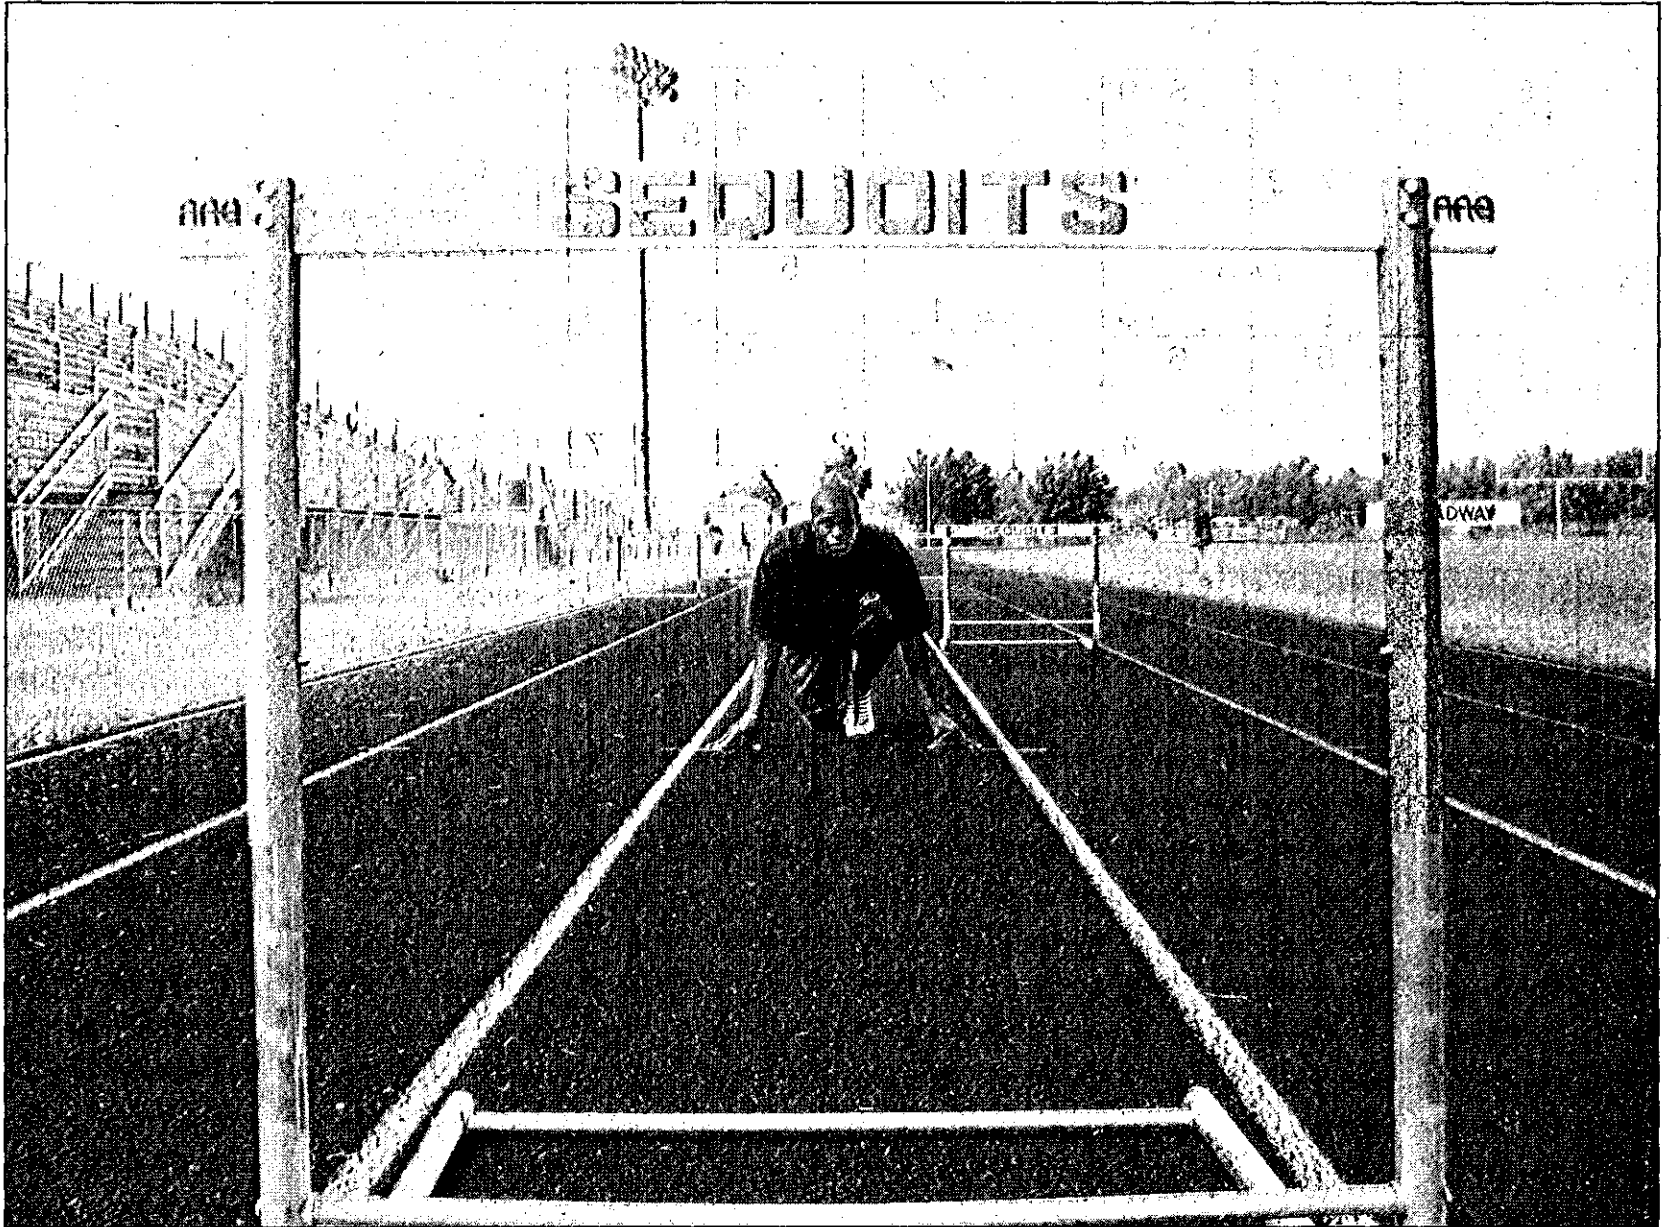

It can be easy to get caught up into stereotypes or negative spins. Hearing about long championships droughts are enough to depress anyone. And not just professionals, but our friends and family.

I know some of my friends get bummed every Friday because their softball team hasn't won a game in like two years. In fact, my flag football team in college never won a game. And my team quit on me my sophomore year because they got sick of losing.

It's hard to break out of loser mentality, but there still are people and teams out there that help us to remember hard work really does pay off.

For many people, they can look at Spain. I look at my little sister, Jackie. She played on the sophomore girls basketball team at Grayslake Central. Entering her freshman year, Jackie had never played competitively. And she could have quit when things got hard, but instead she kept at it. At the end of her sophomore year, she was named most improved player. To me, that is something that should motivate others not to give up.

Patience pays off

Antioch graduate to run hurdles for Eastern Illinois

By JESSICA JACOBSEN
jjacobsen@nwnewsgroup.com

ANTIOCH - The old saying goes that good things happen to those who wait. And it happened for Lamarr Pottinger of Antioch.

Pottinger, 18, recently signed a letter of intent to participate in track and field at Eastern Illinois University. Pottinger competed in the hurdles category at Antioch.

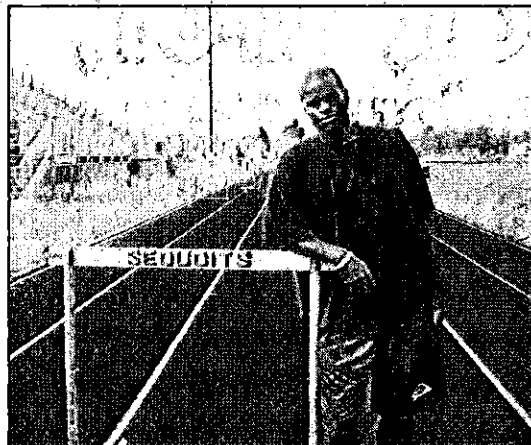

"I was very excited and surprised at the same time," Pottinger said about receiving the offer.

Pottinger received the offer after he competed in the state finals, which took place at Eastern Illinois. But Pottinger didn't think he was going to get an offer from the school because of his performance at state.

"I didn't do as well as I should have done, so I didn't think they were going to be interested in me anymore," Pottinger said. "But I guess he knew my potential."

Pottinger posted a time of 14.95 in his prelim heat in the 110-meter hurdles at state. The potential that Pottinger mentions might have to do with him posting a time of 14.2 in the 110-meter hurdles during the North Suburban Conference meet, which was a school record at Antioch and a record for Pottinger.

But Pottinger now has to make some adjustments in his track and field career. For one, he will compete in the long jump at Eastern. And in college, the hurdles get raised three inches, up to 42 inches.

Antioch's Athletic Director Steve Schoenfelder thinks that Pottinger will be able to handle the transition.

"It takes a different mind set, but Lamarr's got that mind set," Schoenfelder said.

Pottinger is getting into that mind set by participating in a summer track program in Zion called North Shore Breeze. There, Pottinger trains for four days a week and competes in track meets on the weekends to try and compete in the Junior Olympic Nationals, he said.

Another adjustment Pottinger will have to make is not playing football and basketball, as he has for Antioch in years past.

Pottinger has a solution for how he will cope with not playing basketball, though. He's looking to play intramural basketball.

"They said it gets pretty competitive," Pottinger said.

Deciding to pursue a collegiate career in track and field over football and basketball was not a difficult choice for Pottinger. He said track and field is the sport he plays best. And, over the years, it has been the one he's grown to like the most.

"I love playing football and basketball, but [track and field] became the sport I love doing the most now," Pottinger said. "So, I think I'll be happy doing it the next couple of years."

Pottinger almost didn't have to make a choice between sports. Before getting the offer from Eastern Illinois, Pottinger planned to play football and track and field at Carthage College in Kenosha, Wis.

But Pottinger and his family are pleased with his choice to go to Eastern, even though it did require some last minute paper work.

Children can teach dad a lesson

Last Father's Day was devastating for me. I was in the car with my wife and two sons when Daniel, my youngest, told me of his intentions to join the Army. It hit me like a ton of bricks.

Dan had wanted to enlist in the armed services from the day he graduated high school. We were able to talk him out of it and get him to finish three years of college, but this was it. His mind was firmly made up. He finally enlisted this past January. My wife and I are exceptionally proud of him and are proud of the decision he made. That pride does little to reduce the worry that we have felt every day since he has been in the Army.

My youngest son is an excellent fisherman. I'd like to say that I am responsible for his talent, but that would be a lie. I taught Danny to fish when he was a young boy. We would fish when we went on vacations, and we would hit local lakes and ponds either in my boat or walking the shorelines.

Kids hit a certain age when they seem to no longer want to spend time with the old man. Dan was one of these kids. All of a sudden, Dan took up the sport of fishing with a vengeance.

Dan and Murphy, his best pal, stalked the local ponds almost every evening they were home. If Murphy was busy, Dan would go alone. When asked, he seemed to always say that he caught fish, both good size and good numbers.

We would fish together in Wisconsin or in the Upper Peninsula of Michigan on vacation and I got to see how good he had become. Last year, he was pounding me three fish to one using his beloved Berkley Gulp artificial bait.

Stubbornly, I continued to try to catch up using my preferred baits.

Finally, after being thrashed mercilessly, I had to humble myself and beg him for a piece of his Gulp. My catch rate immediately went up. The father had been taken to school by the son.

Dan invited me to fish some of his secret ponds in the past couple of years. I was proud to see how talented he had become.

He was doggedly persistent and he was innovative in his approach. He would try things I would not have thought of doing. I guess the years of studying my endless supply of fishing magazines has done him well.

Dan started basic training in January at Fort Sill in Oklahoma. My wife and I made plans to fly out and visit him for his graduation. There are a lot of good bass lakes in the area, and my wife told me that taking him out for a day of fishing would be a great idea.

She said she would be content to spend a day alone, relaxing or shopping. When I asked Dan about going fishing, he said, "No way, Dad. I'd love to fish with you, but I won't leave Mom alone. I want to spend the days with both of you together." I was proud of his response.

He finished basic and moved on to 10 weeks of advanced training in his field, which is artillery.

He came home for a month. The first two weeks he was committed to working with a recruiting officer for 40-hour weeks. His schedule left no time for me to plan any outings. He spent his evenings pounding the local ponds with Murphy, highlighted by a beautiful five-pound catch-and-release pond largemouth.

When he finally got free time, we were buffeted with foul weather.

We finally got a break, and I wanted him to be able to enjoy some waters that he had never seen before.

I took him out on Lake Geneva in Wisconsin one evening with Phil Piscitello from Borderline Guide Service. Piscitello pulled his Alumacraft up to the dock and Spence Petros got out of the boat. I know that meeting Petros was a big deal for Dan because I had always talked so much about the Hall-of-Famer. I think Dan enjoyed the meeting even more when Petros started busting my chops.

We set out for 15 feet of water to throw drop shot rigs. I caught the first fish and used the opportunity to rub it in my son's nose.

He immediately caught up and just as quickly passed me. Piscitello and I were throwing our baits in the direction we were drifting and reeling in quickly to keep our lines taut. Ever the contrarian, Danny threw behind the boat, figuring to use the drift to straighten out his line.

He removed the plastic worm that Piscitello put on his line and pulled out a different color from his tackle pack. He likes to do things his own way, and it usually works.

With 30 minutes left to fish, I began pleading to the fishing gods to let me catch a few fish. I finally pulled even with Dan, numbers-wise, which made the ride home a lot more pleasant for me.

I'll finish up next week, telling you the rest of my fishing adventures with my on-leave soldier.

H & A Designer
Home of the Beveled Edge Countertops

H & A Designer Counters:
Custom crafted for customer satisfaction.

Countertops can make or date a kitchen. H & A Designer can replace those scratched, outdated countertops with durable, high quality laminate at a fraction of the price of granite or Corian.

And saving money doesn't mean you have to sacrifice style. Owner Jack N. Hodgins has spent over 30 years specializing in producing custom, laminate countertops in the latest finishes. For example, the Wilsonart High Definition Deepstar product he offers has a granite like finish with surprising depth. Jack said he's also an expert at creating beveled edge countertops.

It seems that most people are star struck with the granite tops, which are very nice, but cost twice as much. With prices skyrocketing for just about everything, laminate (with bevel edges) are still the most affordable way of updating your kitchen, office, or your basement bar tops, without breaking the bank.

H & A Designer's showroom has a variety of countertops on display, as well as a line of marble tops. Jack said he has over 600 sample chips to choose from.

"We also offer full service installation," Hodgins said. "I'm very hands-on, so I personally sell, measure, and deliver with my own hands." He added, "We remove out old countertops, install the new countertops along with sinks, and even do tile work, or electrical work." Jack said his brothers work with him in this family business, and that they have expertise in a variety of areas.

"We make the customer a priority, so we don't skimp," Jack said. As a result, he noted that they get a lot of referrals, "We even installed countertops for three generations of one family."

Jack remarked that big home improvement stores couldn't offer the personalized service or attention to detail of H & A Designer, "I believe stand out from the competition because I'm a master at what I do - a master craftsman." Hodgins encourages customers to phone for an appointment so that he can show them his customwork.

Northern Air Systems sets service standard

By LESLIE GLAZIER-WERNER

If your heating and cooling system needs service or replacement, you can expect superior service and complete satisfaction when you call Northern Air Systems. "I'll do whatever it takes to make the customer happy," said owner Wayne Wodach. "Customer service and quality is everything."

After 4 years of trade school in sheet metal work and 19 years working for other companies, Wayne said he felt he could provide better service by going out on his own.

He said he started Northern Air Systems in 1984 wanting, "to be small and just go out and do a good job." However, business has been booming ever since, thanks to the company's versatility and quality workmanship. Wayne said he now has 14 highly trained and certified servicemen and sheet metal workers with a wide variety of residential and commercial work experience.

In addition to servicing and installing furnaces, air conditioning systems, thermostats, and humidifiers, Wayne said they do boilers, radiant heating, and zone systems. He added that they have done the HVAC (heating, ventilation, and air conditioning) work for projects large and small, such as animal hospitals, the airport, a shopping center, an 110,000 sq. ft. company addition, and large homes.

Northern Air Systems carries brand name products known for their quality and dependability, like Trane furnaces and air conditioners, and Honeywell thermostats and humidifiers. Wayne noted that "we go to school all year round" training to use these products.

"If you like my price, you'll love my work," Wodach said regarding his reasonable prices. Northern Air Systems also offers financing by American General and Trane. "I never sacrifice quality and workmanship to save money," Wayne added. So it's no surprise that 90% of the company's work comes from customer referrals. With a solid reputation for superior service, including 24-hour emergency service, Northern Air Systems is the best choice for your heating and cooling needs.

NOTICE TO ADVERTISERS
This is to inform you that there is a possibility you may be contacted by someone trying to scam you. The scammers use plays such as requesting you to send money prior to making a purchase, or offering to pay you a "processing fee" for depositing checks and sending a percentage back to them. THESE CHECKS ARE FAKE and YOU will be held liable for repaying the funds to the bank.

It is usually a good idea to avoid transactions overseas or from out of state. To protect your self, shop locally.

Typically the scammers will contact you via email or via a phone relay system for the hearing impaired so you don't know where they are calling from or what they sound like.

Recently arrests were made in the Netherlands, Nigeria & Canada with fake checks worth more than $2.1 billion dollars. The average victim of this scam loses $3000 to $4000.

Please Be Cautious.

For information on how to report a scam, go to: http://www.ic3.gov

Meet Kangal Our 11 month old Australian Cattle Dog. She's looking for a good home. Kangal was brought into our lives to be a companion for our 7 year old Australian Cattle Dog. However, her "puppyhood" was worn thin out and for both of their benefits, we are looking for a good home for our little miss. She is nautured, has all shots, is housebroken, crate trained, is good with children and young dogs and is extremely lovable if you have time, energy and love to give our Kangal (Roo), please call Jenny at 312.545.9889 for more information!
